

Leslie M. Brown

Casting Director

Project: HIGHLY WRONG
Directed by: JoJo McCoy
Role: LILY
Description: (19) (Any Ethnicity). Female. LEAD. Thin and somewhat frail with a painted red lip. She is a misunderstood poet. She's the black sheep of her family. Her parents are wealthy, stubborn, stuck-up, and her mother is a Cruella DeVille type, but Lily is an artistic romantic; a dreamer. Yet, she is a drinker, because she is misunderstood in her world. (smokes pot / drug and alcohol use depicted in the script)

LILY MONOLOGUE:

"Riding down the escalator urges of shiver consume my spine... 44 pounds of California's finest (weed) waited for me at the bottom of the ride. Snaps from hot camera lens flash across my face. The evidence was sprawled in front of TSA that afternoon. As I attempted to transport a package (for the second-time) beyond state-lines at Los Angeles International Airport. The cold hard metal clinched my frail meager wrist as the arresting officers tugged for me to walk towards the exit. This wasn't any ordinary path taken by passengers... instead it was loaded with space of empty Gloom reduced signs of compass. At least in my head I imagined this terror... that moment when I acquired a Guilty sentence."